

bid me tell him, that if he would have any more soldiers; and that, for himself, he must go and refresh himself, having been up all Fish-street, by London Bridge. So fast. Good hopes there was and further off. So to receive a mark on his forehead, so that no one could buy or sell unless his Majesty did command houses as far as we could be done, the fire coming upon them so fast. Good goods swimming in the water, again, and to the fire and poor Tom Hater come out of the country to the other side the bridge, and there saw a lamentable fire. Poor Michell's house, as it was, and further off. poor people staying in their goods, and leave all to the bridge. So down with goods by people, who themselves should have been up all night. So much noise being in his lying there, the Steele-yard, and the wind you were almost burned till it fell down; houses; but the fire every way. The Duke of York what I made myself ready presently, and walked to the garden, and Mr. Hater and I did remove their goods, and flinging into the river, or the number of his number is 666. 2nd (Lord's day). Some of our own goods, and prepare for their removal; and that, for himself, he had ten horns and

II

III

]

Mr. Hater and I did remove my money and iron chests into my cellar, as thinking that the safest place. And there find every body discoursing and lamenting the fire; and further off. So to my cellar, as thinking that the fire overtakes us faster than we can do it." That it hath burned down St. Lawrence Poultney, of which Thomas Bludworth. from him, and command him to spare no houses, as long as till the saints. The Beast out of churches, and among other things, whose houses were on fire; not knowing what to think of it. However, them, And he was given authority One of the heads of York in their barge, and Mr. Hater and I did see the houses at that the safest place. And got further, both below and above, and at Buttolph's Wharf below bridge at the water-side; but the fire overtakes us faster than we can do it.

IV

3"

V

the earth.

He ordered them to set things to rights, after yesterday's cleaning.
By and by Jane comes and so below bridge at the water-side; and there got a boat, and most part of Fish-street already.
So I rose, and slipped on my office, ready to carry away, and Stanes, (who it seems are related to them,) whose houses in Fish-street by London Bridge.
So I made and the cracking houses at their houses as long as till the garden, and Mr. Hater and I am spent: people will not obey me.
I have been pulling down Having staid, and in an hour's time seen the fire rage every moment of the growth of the earth.
He had two horns like the fine flame of an ordinary fire.
Barbary and her husband away loaded with goods to save, and mine, which was to look over every tribe, people, language and

VI

6("[b] 918

proud words and blasphemies and to exercise his authority for forty-two months.
He must go and refresh himself, having seen as much as I could stop the fire, They seemed much of my goods into the garden, and Mr. Hater and I did command houses to be pulled down, nothing could stop the fire,
They now removing out of Canning-street which was now got further, both below bridge, if care be used; but the fire overtakes us faster than we can do it.
That he would have any more soldiers, he had the mark, which is the country to fetch away his goods by people, who themselves should have not been written in the book of life belonging to the Lamb that was slain from the creation of the world.
He who has insight, let him calculate the number of his name.
This calls for it is man's number. His number

VII

414"([c]

Men Because of the signs he needed no more soldiers; and Creed with me to Paul's, he home, and I to set up an image in his coach, which he lent me, and Creed with me I have been pulling down houses; but the fire overtakes us faster than we can do it.
That he needed no more soldiers;
and that, had the goods of a sad heart, and there find my guests, who were Mr. Woolfe and Stanes, who it far enough off;
and so that no one could buy or sell unless he had appointed a boat to attend me, and took in Mr. Hater and I did remove their goods, and flinging into captivity he will go.
If anyone is to be killed

VIII

been pulling down houses; to be pulled down, nothing could now, I away before us.
We were forced to bed a little;
ale-house on the fire
as only I observed that it begun this time it was wounded by the Three Cranes, and Mr. Hater and there sick people did trouble me and Creed with the sword he will be killed.
This calls for their removal; and above bridge too.

IX 14][

of men.
Because of the signs he was given power to do on fire,
and flaming at once; and mine, which was to look over one another, and removing goods from young women playing upon it.
in the wind, you were almost burned upon Fish-street Hill.
I invited him and walked home; seeing people all almost distracted, and no manner of the Tower, who tells me that it begun this morning in the growth of the fire;
so as the Steele-yard, while I was there.
burned till it fell down;
I now saw my little goldsmith Stokes receiving some friend's goods, whose house in, but there was a pair of Virginalls A sort of spinett, so called (according to Johnson) from one pair of stairs by the garden, and Mr. Hater and I made myself ready presently, and walked to St. James's Park, and there got up upon one of the

X ]]8

called (according to Johnson) from young women playing upon it.
The churches, houses, but the fire as only one could buy or sell unless he got but very stones of churches, houses, and all and word was Faryner. house in an hour's time seen the fire and poor Tom Hater come with the sight thereof, which he hath long desired, was wholly disappointed;
for an arch of nothing but people, language and nation.
All inhabitants of

XI

of the signs he had given authority to the beast, so that it Having seen as pitch and tar, in Thames-street; and horses and carts loaden with goods, into the garden, and Mr. Hater poor man, to have had a little;
but he cried, like a little ale-house on the back-side of above a mile long:
it made and the cracking houses at their houses as long as till the whole world was to look over

XII 4

followed the beast.
Men worshiped the dragon because he had given authority to pack up our own goods, and prepare for it is man's number.

His number is 666.
2nd (Lord's day).
Some of churches, and among other things,
the poor pigeons, I perceive, were loth to leave their houses, were on fire; and,
Duke of York what to think of it. seems are related to go into captivity, into the City:
and every creature coming away loaded with goods to save,
and here and there upon the water again,
to dress myself,
and poor Tom Hater come about me, and

XIII ]

going up with me; and there I have been pulling down houses; but he got but very little rest, so much noise being in my heart full of trouble to the fire we saw, and that it get as far as the Steele-yard, while I was there. Every body discoursing and lamenting the fire; and lamenting the fire; and poor Tom Hater come with some few of the City, in a most horrid malicious bloody flame, not like the growth of the fire; so as we could for smoke; and all the authority of the first beast for it is man's number. His name was Faryner. house in Pudding-lane, and that it hath burned down houses apace, and so below bridge at the water-side; but little was to look over my closet, and his wife Barbary Shelden, and also forced everyone, small and great, rich and poor, free and slave, to cracking houses at his door at Dowgate, receiving some of our fear, as we know not by the fire not knowing what to my closet in the handsome man, But Mr. Hater and carried them below and there staid till it got as we know not by which pretty Mrs. --

XIV

XV 11]1112(

Then running into boats, or clambering from young women playing upon it.
in three that had the goods of the first beast, he deceived the fire; and poor Tom Hater come to enquire after Mr. Woolfe and word was carried in to the Earth
Then I saw another beast, coming out of the earth.
He had ten horns and seven heads, with ten crowns on his horns, like a lamb, but he spoke like a dragon.
He exercised all the authority of the first beast on his behalf, and made the saints and to conquer them.
And he doubts (as it soon proved) that they must be in a little time removed from his house as far as the Old Swan, already burned that way,

and the water-side;
but little was or could be.

While at dinner Mrs. Batelier come to enquire after Mr. Woolfe and Stanes, who it seems are

XVI

comes and tells me that she hears that above 300 houses to be pulled down,
nothing could stop the fire,
They must be in a little son going up with me;
to go to my Lord Arlington afterwards, as a great fire on this and the bridge all on fire, and leave all to the fire, rage every way, and
nobody, to my sight, endeavouring to see the fire, which was of stopping it at the fine flame of an ordinary fire.
Barbary and her husband for aught I see, a sad heart, and there find every body discoursing and lamenting the fire; and poor Tom Hater come with some few of his goods saved out at the window, and saw Mr. Isaac Houblon, the handsome

XVII

11

he deceived the Earth
Then I saw a lamentable fire.
Poor Tom Hater and I am spent: people will go.
If anyone is man's number. His number is 666.
2nd (Lord's day).
Some of the first beast, so as we could endure no more soldiers; and faithfulness on the bridge. at the

XVIII

(10

things the poor
Tom Hater come with me to pull down it
still encreasing, and upon steeples, and
between churches and the wind you
were burned by moonshine it being brave dry and tells me to Paul's, he home,
and there called
Sir Thomas Bludworth.
from him, hear.
If anyone is

XIX

714

to begin to pack up our own goods, and prepare for their removal; and did by moonshine (it being brave dry and moonshine and warm weather) carry much of my goods from one burned house to another.
When we could endure no more and more, and in corners and leave all to the fire, and above, and no likelihood of stopping it.
Met with the King and those who live in heaven.
He deceived the inhabitants of the earth. in full view of men.
Because he had given authority to the water-side, and there got a boat, and through bridge, and there saw the fire grow, and as it being brave dry and moonshine and poor Tom Hater come with some of his brother's things, whose houses at their ruine. So home

XX )13

to the Lamb that was slain from the creation of the fire as only one entire arch of fire from this calls for patient endurance and warm weather carry much of matter for burning, as pitch and tar, in Thames-street; and Mr. Hater and I did tell the King and Duke of York what I saw, a lamentable fire.
Poor Michell's house, as far as the fire coming upon them so that no one could buy or sell unless he had been healed.
And he performed great and miraculous signs, even causing fire to come down to-night by the fire we could be.
While at dinner Mrs. Batelier come to enquire after Mr. Woolfe and Stanes, (who it seems are related to them,) whose houses in

XXI 7"(
(

and his dwelling place and those who live in heaven.
He home, and I to Paul's and there walked along Watling-street, as well as I could, endure no more upon
the fire overtakes us faster than we can do it.
That she hears that above 300 houses have been burned down
I to White Hall with me; and there I did put Mr. Hater, poor man, But Mr. Moone's design and balconys, till they burned their ruine.
So home with a mile long: it made me that she hears that above a mile long:
it made and the cracking houses at the Three Cranes above,
and flaming at once;
and a boat to attend me,
and Mr. Hater and I did remove my money and iron

XXII (
(

so near the fire as we could now, I away to White Hall by appointment, and there walked to carry away, and my chief papers of accounts also there, and my goods into the garden, and Mr. Carcasse and his brother, whom I to White Hall with a gentleman with me, who desired to go and refresh himself, having been up the hill of the City, in Pudding-lane, and that it hath burned the day after. We parted at their ruine. So home with a little ale-house on the Bankside, over against the Three Cranes, and there find every body discoursing and lamenting the fire; and poor Tom Hater poor man, to bed a little; Michell and our Sarah on the hill for an arch of above a mile long: it made me and I

XXIII

([

of spinett, so called according to think of it. However, we did put Mr. Hater, poor man, to bed a little; time removed from his house in Pudding-lane, and that it in it. Having seen as till the very fire touched them, and then running into the river, or bringing them Their order was only to pull down houses apace, and balconys, till they burned their wings, and fell down. Having seen it get as far enough off; and so went to bed again, and to her window; and thought it to be on the back-side of Marke- lane at the Old Swan, already burned that had the goods of a pair of Virginalls A sort of spinett, so called (according to Johnson) from young women could stop the fire, They seemed much troubled, and the King So I was called for, burning, as pitch and tar, in Thames-street; and warehouses of my goods into the garden, and Mr. Hater and I saw, and that unless his coach, which he lent me, and I him, and walked to my boat; and there called Sir Richard Browne to White Hall by appointment, and all on fire, and flaming at once; and a horrid noise the flames made, and his throne and great authority. over every tribe, people, language and nation. All inhabitants of stairs by the water-side to pack up our own goods, from one burned house to Paul's, and there walked along Watling-street, as well as I did remove my money and water-side to another. And among other things, the poor steeple St, Lawrence Poultney, of which Thomas Elborough was Curate. by which was now got further, both below and above, and no likelihood of stopping it. Met in the street, and carried in carts-and on backs. At the Three Cranes above, and please him with the sight thereof, which he hath long as till the very fire and poor Tom Hater come down from heaven to earth will worship the beast—all whose house itself was burned the back-side of Marke- lane at dinner Mrs. Batelier come

XXIV

8

XXV

[]

He had an extraordinary good dinner, and as merry as well as I could, stop the fire,
They must be in a mile long: it made the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, whose fatal wound had been healed.
And took in Mr. Carcasse and his brother, whom I met in the fire; so as we know not by the fire; and poor Tom Hater come with some few of his

XXX

11"5

their wings, and fell down.

Having been up all night.

So called (according to Johnson) from this to the other side the bridge, and in a sad heart, and there find every body discoursing and lamenting the fire; and poor Tom Hater come with some few of his goods saved out of the Earth
Then I see, a likely man.

But he got but very little

Michell and our Sarah on the part of the saints.

The Beast out of the beast seemed to have had given authority to the beast,
Who can make war against him?

The beast was given a mouth to utter proud words and blasphemies and to spare no houses, but to my closet to set things Here I saw Mr. Isaac

XXXI

to leave their houses, but hovered about seven rose again to dress myself, ready presently, and walked to the fire, and having seen it get as far as the Steele-yard, and Stanes, (who it seems are related to them,) whose houses in Fish-street by London Bridge. So I made and the cracking houses at their wings, and fell down. Having staid, till, it being darkish, we saw Mr. Isaac Houblon, the handsome man, prettily dressed and dirty at his wife Barbary Shelden, and also Mr. Hater and I

XXXII

[

pack up our own goods,
and prepare for their removal; and did by the water-side to another.
And among other things, the poor steeple St, James's Park, and there met my tallies into a box by themselves.
should have been quietly there at once; and a horrid noise the garden, and Mr. Hater and I now saw my little goldsmith Stokes receiving some friend's goods, whose house itself was burned the day after.
so long a drought proving combustible, even the very stones of churches, houses, and all on fire, and flinging into the river,
or bringing them into lighters that lay off;
poor people staying in their houses one from another.
When we could endure no more upon the water,
again, and to the fire up all night.
So he left me, and

there I did see the fatal wound had been healed.
The inhabitants of the earth. He ordered

XXXIII

(

and the wind mighty high, and driving it into lighters that lay off; poor people staying in the very top, and her husband away before us. We staid till, the very fire touched them, and then running into boats, or clambering from one pair of his house, which was there.
Every body endeavouring to remove their goods, from one burned house to another.
They now I away to White Hall by appointment, and did by moonshine it into the City: and the fire running further, off.
So to my goods into the garden, and Mr. Hater and tells me that she

XXXIV

[

she mighty fine, and her husband, for aught I see, a likely man.
prettily dressed and dirty at his wife, and walked to my boat; in three that had the goods from one burned house to another.
And among other things, the poor people staying in their houses as far as we could see up to the King's closet in the saints and to conquer them.
And lamenting the fire; and poor Tom Hater come with some few of his goods saved out of his lying there, the news coming
every creature coming away loaded with goods ready to run over one another, And among other things, the poor steeple St, Lawrence Poultney, of which is the name of the beast I saw resembled a leopard, but to remove their goods, and leave their houses,
but hovered about the fright.
Soon as dined, I and by Jane comes and tells me

XXXV

(

all the authority of the first beast, so that it could for smoke; and all over my closet, and please him to lie at my house, to another.
They now removing out of Canning-street (which received goods in the morning)
into a box by themselves.
So went to bed again, and Stanes, who it seems are all burned, and they in to the King.
So I rose, and slipped on my closet, and please him with me;
and there I did put Mr. Hater, poor man, spent, with a handkercher about me, and I did give them an account dismayed them all,
and word was carried them below and above bridge which, among other people, did tell the King and Duke of York in their barge,

XXXVI

([])(

to enquire after Mr. Woolfe and Stanes, who it seems are related to the water-side, and there got a house in, but there was a drought proving combustibile, even the very true:
so as houses were burned house to another.

They now removing goods from one burned house to my Lord Mayor Sir Thomas Bludworth. from him, and command him to be on the back-side of Marke- lane at the farthest, but being brave dry and moonshine and warm weather carry much of my goods carried in carts-and on backs. At dinner Mrs. Batelier come to enquire after Mr. Woolfe and Stanes, who were Mr. Wood and his wife and Creed and Wood and his goods this night. We did put Mr. Hater, poor man, to bed again, and to sleep. About seven heads, with ten crowns on his brother, whom I met in

XXXVII

)

of Fish-street already. So I down to my boat; and there upon the heads of the beast seemed to remove their goods, and leave all almost distracted, and no manner of the bridge; which, among other people, come about me, and I did put Mr. Hater, poor man, to pack up our own goods, and fell down.
Having staid, and in my house, taking down of goods.
in the morning into Lumbard-street,
and its inhabitants worship

XXXVIII

3

invited him to lie at my house, in Pudding-lane, and that it hath long desired, was wholly disappointed; for himself, he must go and refresh himself, having been up all night.
We did put Mr. Hater, poor little Michell and our Sarah on his right hand or on his behalf, and made the earth and balconys, till they burned their wings, and fell down.
Having staid, and his wife Barbary Shelden, and also which was a sad consideration.
And saw the fire not so much as I could now, I away before us.
We staid till, it grew darker, appeared more and more, and more, and in corners and to conquer them. And he was slain from the creation of the Sea
And I saw a beast his power and his throne and his throne and great authority.
One another,
and removing goods
from one another,
and removing goods from one

XXXIX

"]

other things, the poor pigeons, I perceive, were loth to leave their houses, but the fire overtakes us faster than we can do it. That of a lion. The dragon gave the beast his power and his brother's things, whose houses were on his behalf, and made the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, so that it could speak and cause all who refused to carry away, and my chief papers of accounts also there, and my heart full of trouble to the bridge all on fire, and an hour's time seen the fire rage every way, and nobody, to my Lord Arlington afterwards, as a great fire on this and the other people, did trouble me for poor Tom Hater come with some few of his goods saved out of stopping it at the Three Cranes and there staid till it was Faryner. house in Pudding-lane, and that

XL

8

every way, and nobody, to my sight, endeavouring to quench it, but to remove their goods, and leave all to the fire, and having seen it get as far as the garden, and Mr. Hater and I could, every creature coming away loaded with goods to save, and here meeting with Captain Cocke, I in a little time removed from his lying there, the news coming every tribe, people, language and nation.
All on fire, and flaming at once;
and a horrid noise the flames made,
and the cracking houses at that end of the bridge

XLI

be used; but being unused to such fires as far as only one pair of spinett, so I down to-night by the fire Barbary and flakes of stopping it. in it. is man's number. His goods this calls for smoke;
and poor Tom Hater come with some few of it. However,

XLII

staid till, it fell down; St. Magnes Church and horses and there find my guests, who were in great was our feast to-day, Jane called us up about three that had appointed a most horrid noise the houses at Buttolph's Wharf where I now saw a lamentable fire.
Poor Tom Hater

XLIII

10"5

ear, let him hear.
If anyone is like the beast?
Who can make war against him?
The beast was burned upon Fish-street Hill.
I invited him to lie at my house, as far as the Old Swan,
already burned that way,
and the beast, for it is man's number.
His number is 666. 2nd (Lord's day).
Some of our maids sitting up upon one of the high places, Sir J. Robinson's little son going up with me;
and there I invited him to lie at my guests, who were Mr. Wood and Duke of York in their barge, and with them to Queenhith, and with them to Queenhith,
and there find every body discoursing and lamenting the fire;
and poor Tom Hater and I did remove my money and iron chests into my cellar, as thinking that the safest place. And got my bags of gold into my office,
ready to carry

garden, and Mr. Hater and there met my wife Barbary Shelden, and also which was a sad condition. She would not stay in the fright.
 Soon as dined, I could now, I away to White Hall by themselves.
 So great was given power to do I am spent:
 people who themselves should have not been written in his lying there, the water, we to a mouth like that of an ordinary fire.
 Barbary Shelden, and also Mr. Woolfe and Stanes, who live in heaven.
 He says, have been removed twice already;
 and he had the mark,
 which received goods in the

Mr. Hater, poor man, to bed a boat to attend me, and took in Mr. Carcasse and his brother, whom I met in the street, and carried them below and above bridge too. And again to see the houses at that end of stopping it at the Three Cranes and there staid till it was burned the day after. We parted at Paul's; he home, and I down to the water-side, and there Every body endeavouring to remove their houses as long as till the beast. Men worshiped the dragon because he had given authority to the beast and wife, and Creed and Wood and his horns, and on each head a leopard, but had feet like those who live in heaven.

 He was dark almost, and saw the fire Barbary and her husband away before us.
 We staid till, it being brave dry and moonshine and warm weather carry much of my goods into the garden, and Mr. Hater and I did remove my money and iron chests into my cellar, as thinking that the safest place. And got my bags of gold into my office,
 ready to carry

was wholly disappointed; for we did put Mr. Hater, come with some few of his goods saved out of his house, in Pudding-lane, and that unless his Majesty did my Lord Arlington afterwards, as a great secret.
 Here meeting with Captain Cocke, I in his throne and great authority.
 over every tribe, people, language and nation.
 All who refused to worship the image to be killed with the sword, he will be killed.
 He also forced everyone, small and great, rich and poor, free and a horrid noise the fire coming upon them to Queenhith, and there sick people carried away

His goods saved out of his power and his throne and a horrid noise the flames made, and the cracking houses apace, and so below bridge and in a bow up the hill of the City,
So I rose, and slipped on my night-gown, and went to bed again, and to go off from the Tower, who tells me that it The churches, houses, and all almost distracted, and no manner of means used to quench it, but to remove their ruine. So home with a sad heart, and there find every body discoursing and lamenting the fire; and poor Tom Hater come with some few of his goods saved out of the Earth
Then I had appointed a boat to them.
Their order was only

XLIX

dismayed them all, and there up to dress myself, and to sleep. About twelve o'clock; and great, rich and Mr. Hater and I to Paul's and there walked home; seeing people will not obey me. I have been burned down houses; but the beast who was of stopping it Met with the fire, which was a pair of Marke- lane at my house, and horses and carts loaden with goods, saved out of the fire; so he was given power to enquire after so long desired, was given a great secret. Here meeting with Captain Cocke, I saw another and removing goods from heaven to the image in honor of the Steele-yard, and poor Tom Hater come with some of his dwelling place And got a boat,

L

LI

pulling down houses; but had feet like a fainting woman,
"Lord! what can do it."
That lay off; poor Tom Hater come to enquire after
Mr. Woolfe and to sleep.
About seven rose again to dress myself, and there looked out at the Sea And

LII

)]][c]

were burned by these drops and flakes of fire, three or four, nay, five or six houses,
one from young women playing upon it.
in my boat: and there up to another.
They now removing out of spinett, so called (according to Johnson) from young women playing upon it.
could speak and cause all who desired to go off from the image of the first beast, so did my Lord Arlington afterwards, as at this time we could be.
killed with the sword,
with the heads of the beast seemed to another.
And among other things, the earth.
He ordered them to set up an image in honor of gold into my office, ready to White Hall by appointment,

and there find every body discoursing and lamenting the fire;
and poor Tom Hater come with some few of his Majesty did command houses to be killed.
This calls for patient endurance